The natural rubber exchanges close significantly firmer in week 45. We see good demand on the global markets, coupled with negative weather effects, especially in Thailand and Sri Lanka.

After several weeks of stability, the euro weakened significantly against the U.S. dollar and closed the trading week at 1.1452. Crude oil prices were slightly lower at a high level.

We would like to draw your attention once again to the PEFC webinar on November 24, which has met with very strong interest!

In preparation we would like to recommend an interview with our specialist for sustainability, Mr. Hans Evers, which you can open under the following link:
