China has returned to the market following its extended holiday period.

Furthermore, we have heard that VRG is still holding meetings to discuss sales volumes for the remainder of the year, although no further details are available yet.

On the market side, prices briefly corrected on Thursday night before rebounding quickly on Friday. The euro also strengthened on Friday, helping to buffer some of the price increases for EU buyers.

Turning to weather conditions in Southeast Asia, the situation in Vietnam and Thailand remains unchanged, with continued rainfall. On the other hand, Forest fires continue to rage across Indonesia due to the extended dry season associated with El Niño, covering large areas of Malaysia and Singapore in a thick layer of smoke.
